At our next meeting…. Wednesday, February 13, 2013, at 7 p.m.

David & Dianne Reesor—Antarctica

David and Diane Reesor have given several programs to us in the past of their photographic travels around the world. This time they take us on a three-week journey aboard a Russian converted spy ship (ice-breaker) from South Georgia to Antarctica. The ship itself was capable of sending radio transmissions underwater from Antarctica to Moscow and also capable of complete silent running.

Antarctica is virtually pollution-free and the air is crystal clear. This made the beautiful scenery even more breathtaking. There were icebergs, seabirds, and penguins galore and they even visited Shackleton’s gravesite.

South Georgia where they started from is where the Argentines started the Falklands War. There was a contingent of Ghurka soldiers on South Georgia when they were there.

They also spent a week in Chile and Argentina and another week on the Falklands before they started their trip.

If you have seen any of their previous programs, you know just how great their videos and pictures are. You don’t want to miss this one.

What’s Happening in our Chapter
By George Wall and Karen LaFrance

There was a Board Meeting on January 2, 2013. Attending were George Wall, Tim Cullison, Haylie Hewitt, Gail Bliss, Eleanor Campbell, Darnell Kirksey, Andréé Tarby, and Jerry Theis.

The committee reports were presented. At the end of the year, we had 768 members. Field Trips for birding have been scheduled through September. Programs are coming together for the year.

The annual picnic has been confirmed for Horseshoe Ranch on March 23rd.

Nominations for the Board were discussed.

The January general membership meeting was held on the 9th. Mike Quigley gave an excellent program on the Arizona Desert Heritage concerning the Sonoran Desert and surrounding areas. He had an excellent speaking voice that kept everyone's attention. 33 members attended, but surprisingly, no visitors.

The Education Committee met on January 18th. The Backyard Bird Habitat plans are progressing as well as building a bird friendly community. The Speaker's Bureau should be finalized before summer. The projects are on schedule. Binoculars are a prime concern right now. Until we can purchase some, Karen LaFrance will see if we can borrow some from Audubon Arizona for use during the Girl Scout Badge quest on March 2nd.

Do you have a spare pair of binoculars that you could donate to our chapter? If so, please contact one of the Board members.

This is a great birding area that has the potential for a variety of warblers, vireos, woodpeckers, flycatchers, phoebes, swallows, etc. The Tonto Natural Bridge is a unique area that presents different habitats in the same small place. The bridge itself is more like a tunnel that Pine Creek flows through. These two areas should produce lots of birds.

Great Backyard Bird Count (GBBC)

This year’s GBBC is going to be from February 15-18, 2013.

What is a GBBC? The Great Backyard Bird Count is an annual 4-day event in counting birds to create a real time snapshot of where the birds are.

Participants tally the number of individual birds of each species they see during their count period. They enter these numbers on the GBBC website. The website is www.birdcount.org or www.birdsource.org. Either one will take you to the same GBBC website.
I recently visited Jim Consolloy’s home since I was informed he had a great backyard bird habitat and I wasn’t disappointed. I found out he started bird watching in 1959 when he was in the Boy Scouts. He wanted to be an Eagle Scout and was encouraged to work on the Bird Study Merit Badge towards that goal which he achieved. He started going out on nature trips and he did his first Christmas Bird Count in 1960. He continued to do these counts (50 years) until he moved here in 2010, with his wife Trish. His first encounter with Audubon was when he became a member of the Washington Crossing Audubon Society in New Jersey also in 1960. He gained more experience over the years through his college education excelling in horticulture. As the years passed, his knowledge grew by managing a nursery, taking care of a farm and managing the Princeton University grounds. He’s currently doing volunteer work at the Desert Botanical Garden.

With all this experience, it is no wonder that he has made his backyard a Little Corner of Heaven for Birds. Before going into his backyard, I looked out the window and saw a Spotted Towhee, White-crowned Sparrow and House Finches flitting around. As I walked around his backyard, I saw other birds like a pair of Verdins and a Northern Mockingbird. I also saw the ground trees, an amazing variety of shrubs, and ground cover. Here’s what I noted with his help:

Trees: Mexican Fan Palm, California Fan Palm, Pygmy Date Palm, Queen Palm, Italian Cypress, Blue Juniper, Seedling Arizona Cypress, Seedling Shoestring Acacia, African Sumac seedling, Little-leaf Palo Verde, Palo Verde (Spanish species), and Saguaro Cactus seedlings.

Shrubs: Naval Orange, Pink Grapefruit (citrus are shrubs), Lantana species, Natal Plum, Dwarf Bottlebush, Blue Agave, Desert Broom, Yellow Stans Orange Bells, Texas Orange Bells, Mexican Petunia, Russian Sage, Duranta (Blue Skyflower), Cape Plumbago, seedling Tree-form Oleander and 40-50 seedling succulents.

Groundcover: Myoporum, Cat’s Claw vine, Cape Honeysuckle vine, Red Bougainvillea vine, Pink Ipomea (Morning Glory), and the potted plants – Elephant Food, Indian Fig Cactus, Totem Pole Cactus, several mixed cacti, large kettle pot of pink Mulhy Grass (Gambel’s Quail nest site) and ornamental corkscrew willow branches for hummingbird perches.

His front yard is maintained by the Homeowners Association; however, he has several plants by his front porch most of which he planted. They include an Australian Bottletree, Desert Fern Tree, Tree-form Oleander, Mexican Bird of Paradise, Citrus Hedge, Bougainvillea (Spanish species), young Mexican Fan Palms, Hybrid Tea Roses, Natal Plum, Heavenly Bamboo clump, Red Hesperaloe, potted sage palms, potted Coral Fountain shrubs, Barrel Cactus, Golden Barrel Cactus, Blue Agave, Aloe Vera, Trailing Purple Lantana and Cape Honeysuckle.

He has several feeders including two for hummingbirds He has a beautiful water fountain. What more could birds want.

Well, Jim is not finished as he explained several ideas to me. They included creating rock formations, potted plants, more seedlings and other things to create more shelter and nesting spots for birds.

A Little Corner of Heaven for Birds
By George Wall

With a backyard like this that lies between two golf courses, it’s no wonder that birds flock to his yard.

Jim’s introduction to our area of the United States and bird watching was a fast process. He asked around and found Gerry Horton who was a member of Birders’ Anonymous, Grand Birders and the Sonoran Audubon Society. It wasn’t long before Jim was involved in all three. Today, he is on the Board of Directors for the Sonoran Audubon Society. He’s learning more about birding spots and has started leading field trips.
Esmeraldas Antbird
By Dr. Jerry Theis

In December 2009, my friend Jim Black was completing a world “Big Year” and he asked me to join him and two other friends on a private trip to NW Ecuador, guided by Ecuador’s birding guru, Lelis Navarette. We experienced a lot of rain but saw many endemic species between showers. On one particularly wet day near the community of Alto Tambo, Lelis decided to check on some wooded property he was interested in purchasing, so we headed up a very muddy logging road. Just as we started on the road, I found an empty cigarette pack partially buried in the mud. Since I work in a cancer program, I was intrigued by the colored photo on the pack’s cover, that of a human’s bleeding, cancerous upper palate, serving as a vivid reminder to potential smokers of the dangers of the habit. I kept the pack to present to a future Tumor Board at my institution. Getting back to birding, we slogged up this very, very muddy road, with only Lelis in possession of rubber boots. The muddy conditions were no better as we entered the forest and now we had limbs to trip over as well. In addition, the birding activity was slow. So what could make all this worthwhile? How about an Esmeraldas Antbird, singing heartily at arm’s length away, its song a series of very high-pitched, thin sharp notes?

The Esmeraldas Antbird occurs in NW South America from west Colombia on the Pacific slope north to the southern choco region and NW Ecuador south to El Oro. It’s natural habitats are subtropical or tropical moist lowland forests and subtropical or tropical moist montanes, favoring damp slopes. Due to sexual dimorphism, it is only recently that the male and female were realized to be the same species. The male has a bright red iris and is dark leaden gray. It’s wing coverts are blacker with small but conspicuous white dots. The female is like the male but the back, rump, and wings are a dark chestnut brown with wing spotting usually buff. It’s throat is lightly scaled with white and it’s flanks and lower belly are dark brown. These birds hop about in pairs, sometimes attending ant swarms.

After returning to the main road, while cleaning the mud from my hiking boots, I realized that seeing the Esmeraldas Antbird made the conditions palatable. And yes, I did present the cigarette pack at the next Tumor Board, to rave reviews from my constituents.
